Washington Learns With Interest that Japan Was Asked to Take Initiative in Behalf of Huerta in Opening Negotiations and Promptly Declined to Undertake the Job; European Governments Asked to Bring Pressure on Wilson.

[By Leased Wire to Evening Herald.] with international proceedings, neither the Huerta government nor the United States government would pause in preparations for war. Plans for a possible war act would proceed but the armistice would prohibit actual hostilities in the field and any extension of military movement by either side. In Mexico people would be permitted to go where they pleased unmolested. It would simply establish a truce.

Among those informed of General Huerta's first choice of a nation to represent Mexico in the United States the move was construed as a move on his part to align one of the great world powers with his administration and thus to accomplish a masterstroke in diplomacy.

FOURTY-EIGHT MEXICANS ESCAPE FROM ROSECRANS

San Diego, Cal., April 29.—Forty-eight Mexican prisoners in the army detention camp at Fort Rosecrans escaped last night by digging a tunnel under fences and barbed wire entanglements a distance of 70 yards. At noon today only fourteen of them had been recaptured.

The dash for freedom was led and directed by a pure-blood Yauqui Indian who is a mining engineer, and he is among those who have been recaptured. The work on the tunnel, which was cleverly concealed, began two months ago, according to the recaptured prisoners, and the entrance was covered by a store in a cook tent, and the main passage was ten feet underground.

Under the armistice, in accordance with the progress of the mediation, principally at such an early stage of the negotiations. Officials here also believed that General Huerta would accept the first proposal.

The proposal for an armistice, it was also learned, does not include any reference to the constitutionalists in Mexico, the United States and Mexico merely being called on to cease active operations pending further mediation proposals. Consideration of the constitutionalists' position, it was stated, probably would be involved in the next step to be taken after an armistice has been agreed to by the principals to the present difficulty.
